Borgo di Colloredo Overview

Owners: Enrico and Pasquale Di Giulio

Country: Italy

Region: Molise

Founded: 1960

Annual Production: 20,000cs

Description: Brothers Enrico and Pasquale Di Giulio are third-generation proprietors of Borgo di Colloredo, one of the top producers in the Molise region along Italy's Adriatic Coast. 200 acres of sustainably-farmed vineyards are planted to a mix of native Molise varietals as well as Italian favorites. With an agricultural philosophy emphasizing sustainability and six decades of experience with the land, the winery has become a critical darling, winning awards the world over.

Wine Notes – 2013 Nobili Vigniti Aglianico

Borgo di Colloredo's Nobili Vigniti Aglianico is a coveted Tre Bicchieri award winner and is made from 100% estate-grown Aglianico from 20 year old vines planted in the medium clay soils of Campomarino. This robust red is a classic expression of Aglianico with a deep red and purple color. The nose is complex and features notes of blackberry fruit and ripe plum, with undertones of spice, vanilla and roasted coffee. In the mouth, the wine is full-bodied and well balanced, with soft, well-integrated tannins that drinks beautifully upon release, but is also able to age comfortably for 2-4 years. In addition to the acclaim from Gambero Rosso, the wine has also been a favorite of other leading Italian critics, including Luca Maroni and the encyclopedic annual Veronelli wine guide.
